CORRESPONDENCE.

786 LAFAYETTE AVE,
BROOKLYN, N. Y., Dec. 3, 1889.

Miss Grace E. Dodge, the loving, helpful friend of working girls, and now ex-Commissioner of the New York Board of Education, made the following beautiful and unselfish response when questioned by a reporter in reference to the appointment of Miss Williams of the Normal College in her place. "Oh, what a victory for women," she exclaimed, and then when urged to make a statement replied simply:

"The good of the many is of primary importance; the individual can afford to be misrepresented." As one of my girls remarked the other night: "Sometimes the best way to keep one's self-respect is by holding one's tongue." I wish my readers would take this to heart. Of course there are emergencies where, if the establishment of right means a fight, it is better to roll up one's sleeves and pitch in. But where a fight can only produce controversies and breed dissensions, it is far better to say nothing. All hail to Miss Dodge, the friend of the poor and the unfortunate and the apostle of silence.

Bronson Howard, we are informed, will begin a new play in January. This announcement pleased me, for by it I was enabled to point a moral and adorn a tale. A few days ago I received a very clever comedy from a lady in St. Louis for examination and recommendation. I will venture to say that there is more real live comedy in this woman's drama than in any of Bronson Howard's plays, and this statement is not intended as a criticism upon this gentleman's brilliant work, either. But in the case of the woman's play, there was nervous haste from the first scene to the last. It was not a sustained effort, and because of this, success was impossibility. The writer was in a hurry. In her letter she says—"I hope you will give me your opinion immediately, for I must not wait a single moment of time. The fact is, I am literally running over with plots and situations, and I am desirous of commencing another play immediately." My friend will be "literally running over" with nervous prostration before long, and plots and situations will be numbered with the things that were. Now, it is my private opinion that there are times in our lives when we women can learn something from men. My comedy writer can learn a valuable lesson, for instance, from Bronson Howard. He takes a rest between his plays, and I doubt if he ever felt himself "literally running over with plots and situations." Here the woman dramatist has the advantage, but it is the only one. Intellectual pyrotechnics, like other rockets, are short lived and of small use.

"Always Busy" writes me a most interesting letter, and entreats me to try and make my readers understand the necessity of having some "Catch-up-work" ready. "One can accomplish so much," she urges, "by a little care in providing constant employment." That is so, but I do not believe in constant employment, therefore I shall not recommend "catch up-work." My ideal of a woman is one who knows how much to do and how much to leave undone, and can passively and placidly fold her hands when the leisure hour arrives. I believe in fancy work of all kinds, but not as "catch up-work" for the filling of hours that should be devoted to systematic lounging or out of door exercise. A Western daily accuses me of teaching women to be lazy. That is what I am trying to do. I would like to show the inordinately smart woman how to be lazy, and the lazy woman how to be smart. I wish I could add that I expected to succeed in either undertaking.

Harpers Magazine for December has beaten its own record, and that is a statement which many of the loyal who have not seen this number will be likely to contradict. The illustrations are wonderfully fine, and the stories and articles seem to have been selected with a view of pleasing every cultivated reader. There is certainly something for every taste. Thomas Hardy, Mary E. Wilkins, and Sarah Orne Jewett make a splendid trio. The poems are unusually good also.

The Emma Juch English Opera Company under the management of Charles E. Locke, who deserves a vote of thanks from the whole country for the unwearied pains he has taken to give us the choicest music and the very best singers, will open another short season in our city preparatory to the grand traveling tour. Let none of my readers who appreciate good music omit the opportunity of hearing the incomparable Juch, and enjoying the very best company that could possibly have been got together.

ELEANOR KIRK.

A Woman's Discovery.

Another wonderful discovery has been made and that too by a lady in this country. Disease fastened its clutches upon her and for seven years she withstood the severest tests, but her vital organs were undermined and death seemed imminent. For three months she coughed incessantly and could not sleep. She bought of us a bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption and was so much relieved on taking first dose that she slept all night and with one bottle has been miraculously cured. Her name is Mrs. Luther Lutz. Thus write W. C. Hamrick & Co., of Shelby, N. C.—Get a free trial bottle at GEO. M. WOOD'S Drug Store.

by purchasing the best Piano. Do not decide what make to get until you have investigated the claims that are made for the Estey Piano. The patent repeating action used in these pianos makes them superior to all others, but besides this there are many other improvements that are not found in other makes. The immense business now being done in these pianos all over the world, and the surprising increase in the demand for them proves that there is something in their construction that is worthy of investigation. MR. LEE. "Why, Addie, you needn't cry about it! I only said Mrs. Allen was a very well-informed woman, and I wished you would follow her example."
MRS. LEE. "Yes, and last week you said you wished I could manage to look as stylish as Mrs. Allen—and I make all her own clothes. But see has what I never have."
MR. LEE. "What is that?"
MRS. LEE. "Oh well, she gets all of her information from the magazines they take. I admit that she knows all that is going on, and is bright and entertaining in conversation, but I could do as well as she if I had the same source of information. You lent me the last number of New Magazine lately, and I learned more in one hour's reading about various social matters and the topics of the day than I could pick up in a month by my occasional chats with friends. It certainly covers every topic of interest, from the news of the day down to the details of housekeeping; and everything is so beautifully illustrated, too. Every time Mamie goes over to the Allens' she comes back and implores me to get you to take Demorest's Family Magazine, as the stories are so good. Even the boys watch for it every month, as a place is found for them also in its pages, and Mr. Allen swears by it. It is really wonderful how it suits every member of the family."
MR. LEE. "Well, perhaps I had better send for a Specimen Copy—for, if it is anything like what you say it is, it will be cheap, and better than the whole of it."
MRS. LEE. "I see that W. Jennings Demorest, the publisher, of 15 East 14th Street, New York, is offering to send a Specimen Copy for 10 cents, so we can't lose anything, as each number contains a 'Pattern Order' entitling the holder to any Pattern she may choose, and in any size—which alone makes each copy worth 10 cents, and I just want a jacket pattern like Mrs. Allen's. The subscription price is only $2.00 a year, and I must say I wonder how they can publish so elegant a Magazine for so little money."
